Elevator Competition

The business of handling Western grain is not only the most highly regulated but also the most competitive business in Canada.

All country elevators, whether Line elevators or Pool, compete for business. Competition is as keen amongst Line elevators as it is between Line and Pool elevators. The service given by elevator companies is honest and efficient, as it must necessarily be.

The Alberta Pool advertisements refer to their competitors as a "family compact." There is not and never has been any "family compact" among grain companies any more than there is between Line and Pool elevators.

It is the habit of the Pools in their advertising for competitive business to claim credit for every improvement in agricultural conditions and to blame their competitors for the burdens that remain, whether they arise from world conditions, national conditions or geographical conditions, for which the Line companies are no more responsible than the Pools. Their claim is untrue and unfair.

The Line elevators are as keenly interested as any other organization in a good price for the farmer, in his prosperity and in the improvement of the external and internal conditions that affect his welfare.

Requisites For Safe Driving

The summer just passed has produced the usual crop of automobile accidents to drivers and passengers in the three prairie provinces. The daily newspapers have duly recorded numerous accidents together with the names of killed and injured and, when the information was available, the causes of these frequent disasters.

It is yet too early to record figures detailing the number of accidents and the toll of dead and injured. These will be available later, but indications are that there will be little, if any, reduction below the 1935 record, despite the safety first campaigns which have been waged by governmental authorities, automobile clubs and commercial organizations interested in the subject, through the public press, over the air and through motion picture presentation.

It does not necessarily follow that such campaigns are a failure, but it seems to indicate that public memory is short lived or that the capacity of automobile drivers to avoid accident, no matter how well-intentioned or how careful they may be, is below par. The latter is probably a close approach to correct diagnosis of the ailment.

Statisticians and experts working on figures and available data on the causes of automobile accidents in the United States last year came to the conclusion that the number of accidents arising from defective equipment or faulty mechanism is comparatively insignificant, from which it follows that the human element, the capacity and capability of the driver, is in the majority of cases, the factor mainly responsible for disasters on the highways.

In other words, a large percentage of automobile accidents, can be reasonably attributed to lack of training or lack of experience on the part of the driver and perhaps in many cases, a combination of the two. This statement does not take into account accidents which can be charged up against recklessness, alcoholism or criminal negligence.

Undoubtedly lack of training and lack of experience are the causes of a number of crashes and the opinion is gaining ground that a substantial percentage of accidents is caused by drivers who are ordinarily careful but who have not had sufficient experience to sense danger in time to avoid it or who, sensing a pending risk, are not skilful enough to resort to the proper course to follow in time to prevent disaster.

In view of these conclusions there is much to be said for the adoption of courses of training for those who intend to operate powerful and speedy motive vehicles over the highways. This might be followed by examination of applicants for operators' licenses for the first time, though it would not be feasible to insist on making such tests the sine qua non for the right to drive for those who have previously been granted licenses. Courses of such a nature, if properly carried out by competent persons would at least partially, if not completely, take care of lack of training.

As for accidents caused by lack of experience, these can only be overcome by experience, supplemented by instruction. That drivers can and do develop a form of road sense which warns them of impending danger is the testimony of Oliver Stewart, writing in a recent issue of The Observer of London, England, where the mounting accident toll is causing grave concern.

The writer explains that in course of time a driver learns to interpret small signs which to a novice would pass unheeded. "A driver on a main road about to pass the entrance to a side road, suddenly slows down. No other vehicle is visible; yet as he reaches the side turning, a motor bicycle comes out of it and turns into the main road. If the driver is questioned as to the reason he slowed down before any other vehicle was visible, he will probably say: 'It's intuition.'"

To Mr. Stewart that is not altogether a satisfactory explanation. He pointed out that in all probability the driver unconsciously registered some small sign that something was coming down the side road, a pedestrian turning his head in that direction or a flock of sparrows taking to flight from the ground or some other indicator.

"The swift interpretation of such things," says Mr. Stewart, "is road sense and it is acquired with practice; but it is much too rarely taught. At first the signs will be seen, but not interpreted; and, in the absence of specific instruction, it is only with long practice that the interpretation can be expected to come without delay."

Houses Strange Collection

Many Interesting Curios To Be Seen In Private Museum

Charles Q. Eldredge, veteran world traveller, who has celebrated his 91st birthday, is the sole owner and curator of the Eldredge free museum at Old Mystic, Connecticut, which boasts of more than 7,000 items collected in the last 81 years.

Early in life Eldredge developed a mania for collecting things, and in 1917 he erected a separate building for his trophies and opened his free museum. Since that time, more than 60,000 persons have viewed the collection, while Eldredge himself has personally conducted 25,612 persons through the building.

The collector is as fond of entertaining as he is of collecting curios. He displayed his love of entertaining friends in 1891 when he returned to Old Mystic after engaging in the building business for 20 years, and built a large recreational centre which he called Riverview. Hundreds of guests from Connecticut and neighboring states have used his bowling alleys, shooting galleries and other amusements.

The museum houses as strange a collection as has ever been assembled. In front of it rests the bleached skeleton of a whale, 90 feet long, the gift of Capt. John C. Spicer of Groton, Conn., who caught it in Hudson Bay in 1879.

An enormous penguin greets the visitor just inside the door. It came from Cape Horn and the card around its neck is typical of the labels Mr. Eldredge has placed on the exhibits. The card reads: "I am sure that you folks, like me, are close readers of the Bible, so you will remember that somewhere it tells about those who have ears and hear not and eyes and see not. Well, here is a bird which has wings and flies not."

Eldredge takes more pride in his souvenirs than in his natural history collection. He has what he believes is the first cannon ball fired against Fort Sumter, and he says that Edmund Ruffin, the fellow who fired that shot, also fired the last shot of the civil war. When he heard that Lee had surrendered he shot himself through the head.

Some of his other prize items are a petrified coconut, which, he says, dates from 437 A.D. and was found during the digging of the Panama canal; a ship model built in a bottle and which won the world prize for that sort of thing in 1834; a petrified oyster weighing eight and one-half pounds which was found in South Africa in 1885; a piece of wood from the Confederate gunboat Merrimack; some wooden hinges used on a barn door for more than 200 years; an almost complete set of all commemorative coins issued by states or the federal government, and several thousand rare postage stamps.

For Brighter Silver

Potato Water Is Said To Give It Extra Sparkle

Few people know that if silver is polished while it is hot the work is halved and the resulting brightness doubled! It is worth while to plan your washing up with the end in view. Leave the silver forks, spoons, teapot and cream jug to the last, pour a little fresh hot water into the basin and wash up the silver, drying it before it has a chance to cool down. Another queer and little known tip for silver is this: To give an extra sparkle for special dinner party, soak it for a moment in the water that the potatoes were boiled in. Dry it while still hot and the result will be amazing.

Women In Banking

Few, If Any, Hold Positions Of Responsibility In Canada

Very few, if any, Canadian women, hold positions of responsibility with the banks. It is a field in which thus far the mere male has been able to shove off the feminine onslaught into the business world.

But in the United States, the number of lady bankers is sufficiently great to warrant an association of their own—the Association of Bank Women. This group will convene about the middle of October, just before the convention of the American Bankers' Association.

Offices held by members of the fair sex included in the association's roster run the entire gamut of the banking profession from president down. Included are presidents, vice-presidents, cashiers, trust officers, statisticians, directors, branch managers, and managers of departments such as exchange, collection, publicity, savings.

Producing New Paper

Russian Scientists Claim It Will Last 1,000 Years

A new brand of paper—so strong that it will "last 1,000 years"—has been invented by scientists at the Leningrad laboratory of preservation and restoration of documents, it is claimed.

The formula for the paper was discovered as a result of studying Egyptian and other ancient kinds of paper.

According to the director of the laboratory, Professor Tikhonov, production of the new paper will cost no more than the manufacture of ordinary paper.

Thou Shalt Not Love

— A NOVEL BY —
GEORGIA GRAIG

"I know a few desert songs, too, Hassan," Starr told him. "The English words."

Michael grinned as he had every time she had called him "Hassan" since the first time. That fitted in, too.

"What could be sweeter?" he asked. "Practice up on 'em, Starr. I suppose your name really should be Suleika, or something of the sort, but we'll skip that since you insist on your own. . . . Maybe there ought to be an Arabian serving woman, with a lot of jingling anklets and a purple handkerchief over her head."

"They're dirty," Starr said. "Anyway, I can wash my own back."

There were some interesting times during the next few days while they found and fitted up the apartment which should be the home from which "Play-Girl" would burst upon New York cataclysmically. Every moment was full. Starr had never imagined there could be such joy in marching into the smartest dress shops and merely making known her desires, when some sinuous manikin paraded before her, to become the possessor of the loveliest clothes that ever warmed any girl's heart.

There were a few other interesting moments, not quite such happy ones, when she went back to Mrs. Maloney's for her possessions. She was going to have all new clothes, of course, and such clothes! But there were a few cherished treasures at the Maloney place with which she did not want to part, even if she could hold onto them for only six months.

The landlady was all smiles and expansive when Starr paid her bill in full.

"No hard feelings, I'm hopin', Miss Ellison," she purred, "and I sure hated to lock up your clothes like that, but it's like I was tellin' you, you can't—"

"It's of no consequence, Mrs. Maloney," Starr assured wearily, as she moved by her to climb the steps to her hall room.

Mrs. Maloney, folding the bills to tuck inside her ample bosom, beamed.

"Well, you'll find everything okay, Miss Ellison," she insisted. "You got clean curtains, an'—"

"Oh, did I forget to mention that I would no longer be needing the room?" Starr drawled over her shoulder, but did not pause.

"You ain't?" Where you think you're goin', Miss—the Waldorf?" Starr smiled down on her from the head of the stairs.

"No." She shook her head. "I've taken a suite at Essex House while I'm furnishing my new apartment. It's quite comfortable."

Mrs. Maloney's eyes bulged. "You—you ain't kiddin'?"

Starr smiled wanly and her slight shoulders shrugged.

"Far from it. I—I'm taking a penthouse."

Her former landlady glared, and her lips shut tight. She opened them to snap:

"Go it like that, is it? It just goes to show y' never can tell. . . . An' there I was thinkin' you was a nice girl. . . ."

Starr let her go; did not make any attempt at explanation. But she was smiling oddly as she went on to do her packing. Let the woman think what she chose. It was of no consequence—any more than was anything else. Besides, this was good practice in the new role she was to assume.

Just an episode. Starr forgot it immediately in the excitement of having lunch with Michael Fairbourne and then going on to an art gallery that specialized in paintings of ancient Egypt. There were increasingly many of those luncheons and consultations, of necessity. At each one Starr was beginning to wonder if, in seeking a panacea for one hurt, she might not be rushing headlong into another. Michael was utterly impersonal in all his dealings with her, but that had nothing to do with the quickening of Starr Ellison's own heart.

If only he weren't so virilely good looking, her role would be so much easier. For, try to put it from her all she could, knowing that never must her heart give a thrill of love for any man—especially for Michael Fairbourne whose heart was already given to another—she could not disguise from herself how quickly she was responding to the magic attractiveness of his gray eyes, his masterfulness, the strength of his tall, athletic figure which he carried with

SPICE BREAD
Temperature: 350°F. Time: 35 minutes
1 cup shortening; 1½ cups brown sugar; 2 cups ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR; 1 teaspoon baking soda; 1 teaspoon nutmeg; ¼ cup sour milk; ½ cup chopped walnuts; 1½ cups raisins; 2 eggs. Cream the shortening and gradually add the brown sugar which has been cut up. Beat together five or six times the flour, soda, baking powder, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg. Add alternately with the sour milk to the first mixture. Add finely chopped nuts and raisins which have been dredged with flour. Bake 35 minutes in a pan 9" x 11" which has been lined with waxed paper, top with candied No. 1.

CARAMEL ICING No. 1
1 cup brown sugar; 1 tablespoon butter; 1 cup cream; 1 tablespoon vanilla; 1 cup sugar.

Mix together the brown sugar, butter and cream in a frying pan. Stir until sugar is dissolved and bring to a boil. Boil two minutes exactly from the time the whole mixture begins to boil. Remove from heat and add 1 tablespoon strong coffee. Beat in stiff icing sugar until mixture will spread easily.

the carelessness of being assured of himself. It was going to be hard, harder than she had thought. Bad enough to pretend to be such a shrewd "Play-Girl," but with Michael-Hassan to complicate it!

"It's going to be some debut, Starr," Michael told her on the day the last of the furnishings came for her room-apartment and everything was set in place. He stood staring about with happy eyes, glowing with that enthusiasm which was so much a part of him. "Some place, hey? It oughtn't to be hard to fit right into being a lady from Cairo with all this scenery, yes? Wait till some of the writing mob get an eyeful!" He laughed. "They're already all hot and bothered about meeting 'Play-Girl' and these rumors about her being part Egyptian are the finishing touch. . . . The office has done itself proud for your debut, and now it's to you to give the place Pierre's ball room for the big event—no less—and all the moderns in the smartest of the smart set will be there. It's as I told you, Starr, all you've got to do is play up 'Play!'"

There was that far-away look in Starr's eyes as she smiled.

"You're going to be surprised, Michael-Hassan, how I will play!"

It was a small penthouse they had selected, overlooking the East River, but its long, low rooms were exquisite and ideal for their purpose. From the moment one stepped into the tiny hallway it was like stepping into the East. Strange, tall perforated silver lamps stood all about, but it was the perfume that was the master touch—merely a suggestively lingering hint of perfume that spoke to one intimately, an aroma that caught one by the throat, made him instinctively remember the perfume of a loved woman's hair when the face is buried in it.

"Pretty swell, eh?" Michael asked, his eyes searching about.

You ask me, I'd say those windows are the chief d'œuvre. Glad you remembered the name of that stuff, Starr."

Starr smiled. The windows were screened with mushy-brown work. How could she ever forget that? Though it seemed an eternity since she had wandered through those streets in far-off Egypt and seen window after window of that sort. She said:

"I'm glad you don't want me to wear a veil when I look out of them." Starr's bedroom struck a more modern note. There were touches of Egypt there, too, notably in the pile of exquisite enamel antique necklaces and bracelets which were heaped in an open jewel box of her dressing table, but on the whole the apartment was equipped as the boudoir of any New York debutante, with its great bed of rose silk and silver lace, the tall mirrors, the pillow-piled chaise longue and all the appointments necessary for aid in making a lovely woman all the more lovely.

Through the open bathroom door there was a glimpse of a sunken rose-tiled bath. On the wall above it was painted a representation of ancient Egyptian bathing beauties, disporting themselves in a lotus-decorated pool. A far cry from Mrs. Maloney's hall bedroom.

Odd that the first thing that Starr Ellison should do when Michael Fairbourne left her alone in her new home was to run to that great bed, where the black head in its silk and lace pillows and cry, and cry, and cry.

Michael had done his preliminary work thoroughly. The Tarrance Publishing Company, too, had spread themselves, spending no expense for their de luxe press suit.

Due To Physical Changes

Reason For Increase In Blood Pressure Is Explained

The rise in one's blood pressure is not due to the exercise itself but to physical changes, Prof. R. J. S. McDowall, president of the physiology section, said in a paper read at Blackpool, England, before the British Association for the advancement of science.

If exercise could be taken without physical strain being involved—with out the brain knowing the exercise was being taken—the blood pressure probably would fall, he said. This had been found to occur in horses.

Explaining that when a person exercises the blood pressure rises but falls even below normal level when the exercise stops, Prof. McDowall said this had been explained as due to the accumulation of blood in the dilated muscles.

His observations led him to believe this theory was not wholly correct. He found the fall was due at least in part to a lessening in the resistance of muscles hardened during the exercise.

One concern in Birmingham, England, has just received orders for 20,000,000 British flags to be used during the Coronation next year.

Little Helps For This Week

And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as He is pure. 1 John 3:3.

Only Thine own to be, Only to live to Thee, Thine, with each day begun, Thine, with each set of sun, Thine, till my work is done, So, my Thine own.

God hides some ideal in every soul. At some time in our life we feel a trembling longing to do some good thing. Life finds its noblest spring of excellence in this hidden impulse to do our best. There is a time when we are not content to be such merchants or doctors or lawyers as we see on the dead level below it. Here is God, standing silently at the door all day long, God whispering to the soul that 'n be pure and true is to succeed in life, and whatever we get short of that will burn up like stubble though the whole world try to save it.

Trade Revival In Britain

Number Of Unemployed Reaching Lowest Mark In Years

Great Britain now has a record in industrial army. Exclusive of agricultural totals 10,961,000, the highest known.

During the four weeks ended Aug. 24 the total number of unemployed fell by 38,132 to 1,613,940 or 334,024 fewer than a year ago. It also was the lowest figure in six years.

Trade revival is reflected from many angles. The biggest theatre season for seven years has begun in London.

A boom in apartment building has begun. In all the great centres of population huge blocks are rising with accommodation ranging from the modest small flat to the luxurious apartment. The small flat is popular, particularly with Mrs. Newlyweds and the retired couple wishing to escape the responsibilities of a house.

On Germanium Day in England $42,500 was raised for the blind.

Find Odd Fish

Has Head Like A Wildcat And Huge Curved Teeth

A deep sea fish with illuminated "port holes" was found recently at Capetown, South Africa. Known as "Astronesthes Boulengeri," it is only the fourth of its kind known to science.

Tiny holes, brightly illuminated, are strung along the lower side of the body. The head of the fish is strikingly like a wildcat's. Huge teeth, like curved needles, protrude from the gaping mouth. In addition, there are two sets of external teeth ranging backward from the jaw.

BLINDING HEADACHES MADE HER HELPLESS

Forced To Lie Down For Hours At A Time

Other sufferers from headaches will be interested to read this letter:—"Until last summer I was subject to very bad headaches. While they lasted I seemed to lose my sight and all power of my hands, and was forced to lie down for hours at a time. My aunt (who has taken Kruschen Salts for 12 years with beneficial results) suggested my trying them. I did so, and I've not had any return of those headaches for months. In fact I feel quite better! I shall always take Kruschen regularly in future."—(Mrs.) M.W.

Headaches can frequently be traced to a disordered stomach, and to the unassisted retention in the system of stagnating waste material which poisons the blood. The numerous salts in Kruschen assist in the complete elimination of waste matter, resulting in a purer blood-stream, and thus helping to bring relief from headaches.

Mr. CAFFEINE-NERVES . . . loses his grip!

WILL YOU PLEASE STOP BANGING ON THAT PIANO? THIS HOUSE IS ABOUT AS RESTFUL AS A BOILER FACTORY.

YOU NEVER USED TO HAVE HEADACHES, DID YOU? SHE REALIZE THAT?

WHY, BOB, YOU USED TO LIKE TO HEAR ME PLAY!

HUM—THIS AD SAYS CAFFEINE-NERVES MAKES PEOPLE IRRITABLE. . . . WONDER, BOB DRINKS LOTS OF TEA AND COFFEE. . . . AND DOESN'T SLEEP WELL.

WATCH OUT! SHE'S SO QUIET, I'LL BET SHE'S COOKING UP SOME SCHEME.

AND HAS HEADACHES AND INDIGESTION JUST LIKE THE AD SAYS.

WELL, I DON'T LIKE IT. A LITTLE OF THAT RACKET GOES A LONG WAY AFTER A HARD DAYS WORK.

SHE KNOWS YOU COULDN'T GET TO SLEEP AGAIN LAST NIGHT, DOES SHE?

OH—ALL RIGHT!

DEAR, I'LL BET THE TROUBLE WITH YOU IS CAFFEINE-NERVES. THE LUCK FOR MY SAKES, WONT YOU? THE HONOR STOP DRINKING TEA AND COFFEE FOR 30 DAYS FOR BOTH POSTUM AND METO LIVEN!

WHERE DID YOU GET THAT CRAZY IDEA? I-OW WELL, IF IT WILL MAKE YOU ANY HAPPIER.

30 DAYS LATER . . .

NO MORE HEADACHES! INDIGESTION OR BAD TIMES FOR THIS RACKET 30 DAYS ARE UP! BUT ITS POSTUM ONLY FORGUS FROM NOW ON.

LET'S SING ANOTHER ONE HELEN, GEE, IT'S GOOD TO FEEL FIT AND FULL OF PEP AGAIN!

WHILE many people can safely drink tea and coffee—there are a great many others who cannot. Maybe—without realizing it—you are one of these.

The caffeine found in both tea and coffee may be working day and night to rob you of sleep . . . to upset your digestion . . . to undermine your nervous system.

If, for any reason, you suspect that tea and coffee are harming you . . . try POSTUM for 30 days. There is nothing in POSTUM that can possibly harm you. It isn't less than half a cent a cup—and it's easy to make. It's a delicious drink that may be a real help.

FREE—Let us send you your first week's supply of POSTUM free. Write for it to Consumer Service Department 30, General Foods, Limited, Cobourg, Ontario.

W. W. Isbister, Chinook

The Chinook W. I. entertained their two departing members Mesdames Eaglesham and Chapman at a farewell party on Wednesday evening at Mrs. Otto's home. The evening was spent in games and contests put on by the committee, Miss Otto and Miss Milligan. Two contests were won by Mesdames Chapman and Eaglesham.

The supper table was tastefully decorated with unique placards and individual candles an "Lame Fortune," in the center.

LOCAL NEWS

Monthly Meeting of Chinook W.I. Held

The regular monthly meeting of the Chinook W. I. was held at Mrs. Otto's home on September 16th, with the President in the chair. A note of thanks was tendered the Masons for the use of their hall for our Constituency Conference.

An invitation from Naco W. I. to attend their next meeting was accepted with thanks.

Further arrangements for the bazaar to be held this fall were made. In the program on "Education and Better Schools," Mrs. Eaglesham gave a splendid talk on the new curriculum, showing a worked out enterprise chart. She also answered all questions, giving us a very clear and definite idea of this new plan. Mrs. Rideout won the "buttonhole" contest put on at the close. Lunch was served by Mesdames Otto & Chapman.

Mrs. Chapman was presented with a silver tonato server and Mrs. Eaglesham with a glass bon bon dish.

Chinook and Districts School Fair Big Success

A very successful School Fair was held in the Agricultural Hall, Saturday, Sept. 19. The exhibits shown were of a high quality and showed much careful preparation.
